DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Applicant uses claim language that is unclear. The claim language "and so on," "user wants are printed," are confusing to the examiner. The claim language needs to be clearly presented.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Foshier (U.S. 4,386,437) in view of Harris (U.S. 4,499,741). Foshier discloses a baseball style cap 1 comprising a crown main body 3 having a plurality of panels including four rear panels 5 of nylon mesh material, a front panel 7, a visor/brim portion 37 secured to a forward portion of a peripheral edge of the crown main body and extending outwardly therefrom (Figures 1, 2, and 6). A headband 41 is attached along the lower peripheral edge of the crown.

However, Fosher is missing a headband that has indicia on it that can be seen through the mesh material of the cap. Harris shows a stretchable knitted article/headband 20 that has a design printed on it. It is well known that any type of indicia could be used such as logos, numbers, pictures, figures, embroidery etc. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the headband of Harris to modify the headband of Fosher in order to provide a cap with mesh panels having a printed headband design underneath.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Judge (U.S. 5,729,833), Boughten (U.S. 4,989,270), Clingenpeel (U.S. 5,855,023), Cho (U.S. 2005/0223474), and Lewis (U.S. D370,772) show hats having mesh material. Nadeau (U.S. D538,514) and Rendina (U.S. 4,918,758) show headbands with indicia.
